“I've practiced employment law for over 35 years, with a focus on helping clients avoid the changing pitfalls of the workplace.”

I regularly advise and represent clients on a wide variety of employment issues, including hiring, testing, record keeping, discipline and discharge, discrimination, retaliation, collective bargaining, and wage and hour matters. I also counsel clients and other attorneys on matters involving all facets of electronically stored information (ESI), including forensics, litigation holds, and related issues, as well as discovery, production, preservation, and retention of ESI (commonly called eDiscovery). I also write policies and procedures related to general employment and eDiscovery issues, as well as issues arising from employee use of social networking sites, such as Twitter, Facebook, and LinkedIn. Additionally, I have experience conducting management and employee training in all facets of workplace law.
